BJP will win all 3 Assembly seats in Mysuru

Says Union Minister of State for Commerce and Industry Nirmala Sitharaman in city

Union Minister Nirmala Sitharaman is seen addressing a press conference at Hotel President in city this noon as Mysuru-Kodagu MP Pratap Simha and Kodagu District BJP General Secretary Ravi Kushalappa look on.

Mysuru, July 13 (MTY&BCT)- Claiming that there is a strong Narendra Modi wave in India, Union Minister of State (independent charge) for Ministry of Commerce and Industry Nirmala Sitharaman said that the Bharatiya Janata Party (BJP) will win all the three Assembly seats in Mysuru in the State Assembly that is scheduled to be held in early 2018.

"The BJP will trounce Congress and come back to power in Karnataka as the Congress government has miserably failed to protect the interests of the people and has unleashed many unpopular schemes and programmes," she told reporters, addressing a press conference held at Hotel President this noon.

Nirmala Sitharaman was in the city to be a part of the BJP's "Vistharak" programme that seeks to establish a connect with the people. "I have visited many houses in Ward 31 in Gokulam and the programmes launched by PM Narendra Modi, including the Goods and Services Taxes (GST) received good appreciation," she said.

No gifts please, says Minister

Mysuru, July 13 (MTY& BCT)- Known for her simplicity and straight-forwardness, Union Minister Nirmala Sitharaman today rejected expensive gifts that were offered to her during her Mysuru visit.

Corporator Girish Prasad had purchased a 9-inch tall sandalwood idol of Lord Krishna with a flute worth Rs. 9,000.

As he presented it to Nirmala Sitharaman, she declined to accept it. Even much persuasion by party leaders and workers failed to impress her and it was a firm no from her.

Rights Vs Responsibilities

The land's leading lights of a distant past have left a legacy of copious texts in many languages as well as in many forms such as poems, lines of wisdom (Subhashita), anecdotes, voicing the various speechless animals, philosophical thoughts, idioms and proverbs laying down appropriate rules of the game of life, summarised simply and most briefly with the words Sarvejanaah Sukhinobhavanthu, not excluding any living forms. The related texts also spell out the duties and responsibilities to be adhered mutually in order to sustain societal stability. As if to outdo the land's ancient folk, although on a different plane, later generations, more so those of present times, have gone full distance in clamouring for rights, side-lining duties and responsibilities, as reflected in the lines of the nation's Constitution, most often quoted by all and sundry among the literati, side-lining responsibilities while highlighting the rights.

The right to live having been appropriated by the human species has stumped that right for all other life forms, particularly by slaughtering animals to assuage hunger of human populations, chopping down shade-giving, fruit-bearing trees to widen roads and raise buildings, not tolerating presence of cattle and dogs in urban spaces for whatever reasons and so on.

Humans, endowed with many faculties such as intelligence and speaking rhetorically with eloquence have virtually monopolised the living spaces by garnering privileges and rights drawing authority through self-satisfying means made to appear fair, such as adopting a Constitution in which the rest of the life forms don't count. Right To Information, Right To Education, Right To Vote in Elections, Right To Claim various goodies ordered by successive governments, Right to this and Right to that such as Right to form Labour Unions in industrial establishments have pushed the matching responsibilities, particularly to live with civic sense (in every sense of the term) to oblivion as it were. Desire, without capping its limits in both cash and kind, and not deserving, being at the root of the ongoing turmoil in the land, has reached unstoppable proportions resulting in people clamouring for rights and adrift in responsibilities.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

J.Krishnamurti once described a ritual he followed as an experiment. Every morning after he'd bathed, he would formally offer a flower to a rock and fold his hands before it for a few moments with eyes closed. If I remember it right, he didn't say any prayer while doing this. And it wasn't a special rock, just some random stone he had picked up. Indeed, its ordinariness was the whole point. He wanted to observe the process of ritual in religion. After exactly a month, as he had planned, Krishnamurti suddenly stopped the ritual. What he noticed was a sense of discomfort. The mind was used to the ritual, and in its regularity it offered some semblance of satisfaction and fulfilment. Ending it produced unease and perhaps longing, even though the action had been choreographed by the same individual, who understood that the ritual was bunkum. — Aakar Patel in Business Standard.

"Spinal tap"

Kuala Lumpur: Suffering a slipped or herniated disc is no joke. It can be excruciatingly painful and, in severe cases, it requires spine surgery and months of recovery. But for one chiropractor in Malaysia, fixing a slipped disc is as easy as knocking it back into position with a hammer.

Md. Rosdi Hasan has a very unconventional way of dealing with slipped discs and back pain in general. Instead of relying on MRIs or X-rays to diagnose his patients' back problems, he just uses his fingers to check if all the bones and vertebrae are in the right place, and draws a diagram of all the discs directly on the back of his patients, with a black marker. Once he learns everything he needs to know, Hasan grabs a hammer and a piece of wood and starts knocking the discs back into place. Watching Rosdi Hasan taking a hammer to his patients' spine like it's no big deal is painful to watch, especially knowing that it could leave them paralyzed, but he claims no one has ever had any problems after his treatment. He is so proud of his method that he regularly posts videos of his "spinal tap" routine on his social media page.

8-Second Concert

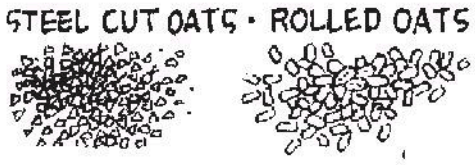
Tokyo: A Japanese Visual Key air band called 'Golden Bomber' recently treated fans to one of the strangest concerts ever, an 8-second performance to promote their latest single, an 8-second song called "8 Second Encounter."

On June 29, fans of 'Golden Bomber' started showing up at Ikebukuro's Sunshine City Mall, in Tokyo, Japan, up to six hours in advance, to make sure they had a stage-side seat. The three-minute countdown to their appearance on stage was much longer than the performance itself, which only lasted 8 seconds. As the countdown reached 2 seconds, the four members of 'Golden Bomber' ran up on stage, grabbed their instruments, and performed their new 8-second song before running off the stage to the screams of their delirious fans.

Nevertheless, fans started asking for an encore and lead singer Sho Kiryuin was happy to oblige. He came back on stage with the rest of the band and performed the full version of their hit song.

HEALTH CAPSULE by Bron Smith

What's the difference between rolled oats and steel-cut oats?



Rolled oats are oat groats (whole oat kernels) that have been de-husked, steamed and rolled flat. Steel-cut oats are oat groats that have been chopped into two or three pieces by steel blades. Steel-cut oats are a delicious variation of common rolled oats, but they take longer to cook: From 20 to 30 minutes.

VOICE OF THE READER

Kudos to BJP MLA Suresh Kumar

Sir,

In recent times, it has become customary to burst crackers whenever some VIP politician arrives for some party function.

BJP MLA Suresh Kumar, who was witness to this when he attended a puja ceremony at a party worker's house recently, asked his party workers to get him a broomstick and they were shocked to see him show the way by sweeping the public road that was full of scattered papers, after bursting of crackers.

Of course, I salute Suresh Kumar and appreciate his concern. Also I humbly request all the party workers (irrespective of political affiliations) to take a pledge "To Stop bursting of crackers in any political function which would result in Noise Pollution, Air Pollution and Land Pollution as well."

Hope, our Prime Minister Modi would also consider this suggestion and highlight the same in his next "Mann Ki Baat" AIR programme.

Shabby work on laying water pipeline

Sir,

Recently the MCC has taken up the work of relaying water pipes by digging roads in many parts of the city. In Vijayanagar Railway Layout too, this exercise is being carried out and some residents have expressed their ire about the shabby work of the contractors for having broken the UGD pipelines.

While most of the connections on either side of the road have been completed, at one place in 10th Cross, the work is half done and left out as the concrete footpath could not be cut to lay the pipeline to the required meter point. This has resulted in huge cave-type pit with lot of half done concrete debris around the pit causing severe inconvenience to motorists and particularly the house owners residing in front of the pit in taking out their four-wheelers from the respective houses. Before any major casualty happens, will the concerned look into this and clear the same?

Spurt in cyber crime worries ADGP

K.V. Gagandeep holds meeting with City Police officers; directs them to attend cyber crime cases and speed up investigation

Mysuru, July 13 (SPN&BCT)- Digital transactions have accelerated rapidly especially after the exercise of demonetisation by the Government. Cyber attacks and siphoning of money from bank accounts make the vulnerabilities of bank cyber security discernible, leaving account holders worried.

Increase in cyber crimes is mounting pressure on the Police to focus on social media sites. It has also made the Police top brass in Karnataka to tour cities to keep an eye on the number of cases reported in a particular city. They are holding a series of meetings with Commissionerates to tackle cyber crimes.

One such meeting was held in city yesterday where Additional Director General of Police-Crimes & Technical Services K.V. Gagandeep addressed Police officers including City Police Commissioner Dr. A. Subrahmanyeswara Rao.

At the meeting, it was brought to his notice that in 2015, 37 cyber crime cases were reported in Mysuru and in 2016, 17 cases were reported. In 2017, till June, 15 cases of cyber fraud were reported.

Cyber crimes such as online frauds, hacking of websites and bank frauds are on the rise. Stating that such cases were being transferred to experts to take up investigation, Gagandeep expressed concern over the increased cyber crime cases in Mysuru in the last three years. Steps should be taken to keep a check on some social media sites created by fraudsters and provide security for all official sites, he opined.

Over the last three years, card fraud cases have been steadily rising, but the Police's detection rate has remained poor.

The ADGP regretted that most of the victims of the cyber crime were educated. "Treat all the cyber crime cases seriously and ensure that arrests are made. Only arrests will ensure that such crimes are curbed. Police officers, instead of dodging cyber crime cases, must assure the complainants that their cases will be taken seriously and investigated," he said. The ADGP added that quick response will help to track cyber frauds.

Discussing other issues, Gagandeep appreciated the City Police for controlling chain-snatching incidents that were rampant in Mysuru. He asked patrol teams, PCR Garuda and Cheetah staff to closely monitor city roads so that the constant vigil can become a deterrent. "Only when you watch you will be able to spot chain-snatchers," he said.

The ADGP also informed officers and staff that there has been a spurt in human trafficking in Karnataka. "The moment you receive information about human trafficking you must immediately act as the safety of women and children are of prime importance," Gagandeep said.

On the dilapidating infrastructure at Devaraja and Lakshmipuram Police Stations, he asked Commissioner Subrahmanyeswara Rao to send a proposal to renovate and refurbish them. He assured that funds to renovate the Stations would be released and basic facilities would be provided. He also said that vacant posts in the Department would be filled up soon.

SURPRISE VISIT

Soon after the meeting on cyber crime, ADGP K.V. Gagandeep visited the Jayalakshmipuram Police Station where there is a long list of rowdy-sheeters, thanks to the Station's proximity to areas including Paduvarahalli and parts of Vontikoppal. His visit, however, surprised the officials and the personnel at the Police Station.

In his meeting with Jayalakshmipuram Police, he asked them what steps they have taken to control rowdy-sheeters. He suggested several measures to curb rowdy activities and also gave them tips to handle tricky situation where rowdies are involved with some dealings with residents.

Condemns killing of Sharath Madivala: Condemning the killing of pro-Hindu organisation leader Sharath Madivala in Dakshina Kannada, the Minister blamed the State Government for its lapses in maintaining the law and order situation.

MP blames CM's aides: Mysuru-Kodagu MP Pratap Simha, speaking on the occasion, said that the State Government was indulging in Vote-Bank politics, which was resulting in communal disturbances. Alleging that the murder of Sharath Madivala was committed by those close to the CM, Pratap Simha said that due to negligence by the State Government, there has been a rise in communal tension in Dakshina Kannada.

He said that the State Government was issuing warnings only to Pro-Hindu organisations but not warning other organisations because of losing votes. The MP said that the State Government had withdrawn cases against SDPI members who had indulged in violence earlier which has now resulted in communal tension in the place.

Minister Nirmala Sitharaman left for MCC Ward No. 31 (Gokulam), where she had breakfast at the house of Corporator Girish and later conducted a door-to-door visit and apprised the residents of various schemes floated by the Central Government.

How Sanskrit evolved in India

In extremist Christian America, evolution is a bad word. Children are taught Creationism, or Intelligent Design, which insists on the role of God in creating the world. Anyone who opposes them is aligned to the Devil.

Likewise, in extremist Hindutva India, and extremist Hindutva America, Aryan Migration Theory (AMT) is a bad idea. It is seen as a sanitised version of the old discarded colonial Aryan Invasion Theory (AIT). According to AMT, based on linguistic and genetic evidence, a group of people came to India 4,000 years ago. In all probability, they called themselves Aryans, had tamed horses, and spoke the Proto-Indo-European language that eventually became Vedic Sanskrit in India.

Hindutva extremists prefer Out of India Theory (OIT). According to OIT, these Aryans and their horses were 100 per cent Indian with no foreign contamination. Indo-European languages spread throughout the world from India. All that is good in the world (including plastic surgery) comes from Vedic civilisation; all that is bad (such as casteism) comes from 'dark-complexioned' non-Aryans. Anyone who opposes OIT is branded anti-national and Hinduphobic.

The British ignited the Aryan controversy. They were impressed and confused by ancient Hindu culture, so impressed that they felt insecure. So, when 19th century linguists revealed similarities between Sanskrit and Latin, and they concluded that Indian wisdom had to originate in the West. They proposed AIT, that a 'white' race of nomads from Europe, or Eurasia, destroyed the Harappan civilisation and established Vedism in India, complete with the caste system and Brahminical dominance. This convenient and 'logical' idea was naturally rejected by Hindus for whom India is the fountain-head of Vedas, hence all wisdom.

Both AIT and OIT are political, based on ideologies of either White supremacy or Hindutva supremacy. Neither can be taken seriously on academic grounds, for history is very complex, and no civilisation develops in isolation. To claim that all of Indian-ness has its roots in the Vedas is as absurd as saying all of Western-ness has its roots in Greece, or Jerusalem.

AMT is a scientific theory that can easily be overturned with new evidence. According to currently available data, Proto-Indo-European language of Aryan immigrants was the mother of Sanskrit, not Sanskrit itself.

Sanskrit evolved in India. How do we know this? Because Sanskrit has 'retroflex sounds' like dh and th not found in Latin or other Indo-European languages. Retroflex sounds existed in India before the arrival of these Proto-Indo-European speaking people.

The local people that Aryans encountered were also immigrants who came into India over 10,000 years ago, around the end of the Ice Age, maybe even earlier. Were they Dravidian? We really don't know. The earliest epigraphic trace of Tamil is about 2,500 years, and the earliest literature is about 2,000-years-old. We can only speculate that proto-Tamil, or proto-Dravidian, or maybe even tribal proto-Munda, was spoken in North India about 4,000 years ago, giving rise to some unique non Indo-European words.

Thus, Proto-Indo-European language became Vedic Sanskrit (around the Indus river and the now-dry Saraswati) by about 3,500 years ago in India using indigenous retroflex sounds and loan words from proto-Dravidian. And Vedic Sanskrit became classical Sanskrit by about 2,000 years ago thanks to Panini's grammar.

Ideas such as dharma and karma are rather vaguely referred to in the Vedas but they are consolidated in the Upanishads and Buddhist teachings that are 2,500-years-old. This consolidation happened in the Gangetic plains, making them very Indian ideas. If this makes confusing reading, remind yourself that culture, like nature, is complex, not designed for political convenience.

Kodavas celebrate Paithande Namme

Community members called upon to fight for minority status, political representation

Mysuru, July 13 (BCT)- Hundreds of Kodava community members assembled at the Mysuru Kodava Samaja in Vijayanagar First Stage yesterday evening to witness a unique tradition of Kodava Paithande Namme.

The event, organised by Karnataka Kodava Sahitya Academy, Madikeri and Sri Bhagavathi Kodava Association, Mysuru, was inaugurated by Maj. Gen. Codanda K. Karumbaya SM (Retd.) It was presided over by Biddatanda S. Thammaiah, the Chairman of Karnataka Kodava Sahitya Academy.

In the past, Kodava society had a practice of honouring mothers who gave birth to ten or more children and they used to be respectfully adored as a great mother. Such mothers used to be honoured in a public function 'Mangala' (marriage ceremony) called 'Paithandekkalapa' or 'Paithande Namme.'

The age-old tradition was introduced to the audience along with the rituals practiced during Paithande Namme. According to the organisers, the event was organised to recall the traditions that are rarely practiced now or are on the verge of extinction.

Apart from Paithande Namme, traditional dances including Bolakaat, Ummathat and Kathiyat were performed. The main attraction of the evening was, however, the mock show of Narimangala (wedding of a hunted tiger), a custom unique to Kodavas where the hunter of a tiger is wedded to the soul of the animal. The ritual was performed complete with traditional dresses, swords, guns, bands and other paraphernalia.

After successfully hunting a tiger, Kodavas take out a procession and carry the carcass with a traditional music band. The hero of the day is the man who first shot the beast and he who first touched its tail. The tiger's carcass is then raised on a wooden frame and the hunter is wedded to the departed soul of the tiger.

MINORITY STATUS

Along with these traditional performances, the event was also a platform for chief guests to speak about the welfare of Kodavas. In his inaugural address, Maj. Gen. Codanda K. Karumbaya SM (Retd.) said that the Kodava Sahitya Academy was doing good work to preserve Kodava traditions within Kodagu district and also outside.

"We Kodavas do not have facilities like reservation as we are economically and educationally forward. But it is imperative for us to obtain minority status as enshrined in the Indian Constitution," he said and called upon the community to stay united and fight for minority status. He suggested Kodavas to have one organisation to fight for recognitions and welfare of the community.

KODAVA MLA CANDIDATE

Concurring with Aramanamada K. Suresh on political representation to Kodavas, businessman and former BBMP Corporator Kaddaniyanda Harish Bopanna (in pic) regretted that Kodavas were dominated by other communities in Kodagu, their homeland. He appealed the community members to elect a Kodava candidate to the Assembly irrespective of the political party.

He also advised Kodavas not to sell their properties in Kodagu to others but instead sell them within the community if it is inevitable. He called upon them to support Kodava youth who have set up businesses in Kodagu and outside.

POLITICAL REPRESENTATION

In his address, Superintendent of Police (retired), Directorate of Civil Enforcement Mysuru Aramanamada K. Suresh opined that Kodavas must have a political representation. "We are a small community and we should ensure that we have representation in the Legislative Assembly and Council. This will give the much-needed political power to the community," he said

"As Kodavas are educationally forward, the youths must take up competitive examinations and make a place for themselves in the upper echelons of the government," he added.

VANISHING TRADITIONS

Speaking on vanishing Kodava culture and traditions, Keethiyanda Kavya Kuttappa said that the unique traditional Kodava attire which people wore on all occasions earlier has become rare now. "This is because Kodavas blindly ape Western culture. Unfortunately, some Kodavas think speaking Kodava language is improper," she said.

"Many Kodavas have migrated to cities in search of employment and they have forgotten the customs and traditions. They don't even go to their roots in Kodagu and this is the reason why traditions are being forgotten," she opined. In a fervent plea to parents, Kavya said that it was their responsibility to ensure that their children dress well when they attend community and public functions.

On the occasion, a book "Kodira Poomale" written by Uluvangada Cauvery Uday was released by former BBMP Corporator Kaddaniyanda Harish Bopanna and Academy Chairman Biddatanda S. Thammaiah.

A CD that was brought out in 1985 on "Kodava Baalopaat" sung by late Napanda Thimmaiah and team from Garvale village in Kodagu was released by Mysuru Kodava Samaja President Moovera K. Kuttappa. The original CD was brought out by Thammu Poovaiah and Ambika of Nada Lahari, Madikeri.

Star of Mysore Editor-in-Chief K.B. Ganapathy felicitated the President of Sri Bhagavathi Kodava Association Ballachanda D. Subbaiah. A book and CD sale was also organised.

Conmen take OLX advertisers on a royal ride; flee with bikes

Mysuru, July 13- The OLX app is a fun, cool and easy way to buy and sell things around you. Talk to anyone if you have something to sell or buy and this is the advise one gets that it is easiest to buy and sell things using this wonderful app.

Realising how gullible people can be, two charlatans would call up people advertising on OLX for selling their bikes and on the pretext of taking them for trials, would vanish with them. However, finally their luck ran out when the South Rural Police arrested them.

The Police have recovered from them three KTM two-wheelers worth about Rs. 6 lakh. Salman and Naushad, hailing from Mandya and Tumkur respectively, are the two culprits who have been nabbed.

Royal treatment to Sasikala in Central Prison, says DIG

DIG Roopa Moudgil alleges payment of Rs. 2 crore to prison officials in her report; CM orders probe

Roopa D. Moudgil

Bengaluru, July 13-DIG (Prisons) Roopa D. Moudgil has stirred a Hornets' Nest by accusing her own boss, Director General of Police (Prisons) H. N. Sathyanarayan Rao, of being involved in corruption.

In a damaging report, after visiting Parapanna Agrahara Central Prisons on July 10, to study its functioning, she has found many irregularities and has alleged that V. K. Sasikala, AIADMK chief and close confidante of the late Chief Minister of Tamil Nadu J. Jayalalithaa, has made a payment of Rs. 2 crore to the prison officials.

Roopa, a tough, no-nonsense, sharp shooter cop who has always been in the thick of things in her 17-year-career, without mincing words has asked the DGP to investigate the matter and also pointed out to him that his name keeps cropping up in serious charges.

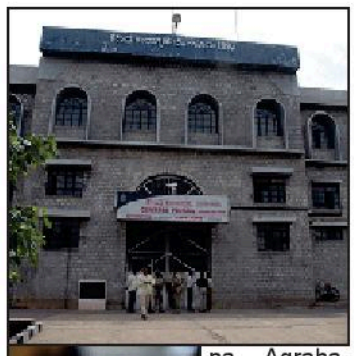
However, she has not alleged anything directly against Rao, but mentioned that irregularity or malpractice by any of his juniors would also point fingers at him.

Royal treatment for Sasikala

Sasikala is said to be given a royal treatment in the jail because of the alleged change of money in the hands of prison officials. In fact, the treatment is so royal that a special kitchen for her has been set up and to prepare food of her choice, four convict cooks have been appointed, said Roopa in her report.

Special facilities have also been provided in the prison cell where Sasikala sleeps and to look after her convicts have been appointed, Roopa has charged.

Earlier, there were reports emanating about the Parappana Agrahara Central Prisons that influential prisoners have access to booze, non-veg food and even narcotic substances like ganja and hakeem. It is also common to hear about allegations of sexual harassment of women prisoners. Now, it is clear from the report that the VIP prisoners can get anything they want if they bribe the prison officials.



Sasikala

Telgi living in style: The fake stamp racket kingpin Kareem Lala Telgi who is accused of being involved in selling crores of rupees worth fake stamp papers is also lodged in the Parappana Agrahara Prisons. Even he is said to be enjoying the life of a Sultan. It is said that there are four convicts to give him body massages. In addition, he has the privilege of being served choicest foods, said the report.

Notice to DIG

The DGP (Prisons) H. N. Sathyanarayan Rao, has served a notice on DIG (Prisons) Roopa D. Moudgil for her sudden visit to the prison. In the light of the notice, Roopa has submitted a report regarding the irregularities and malpractices in the Parappana Agrahara Central Prisons, to the Government.

Meanwhile, CM Siddharamaiah has ordered a probe into the report. Speaking to reporters today, he said that a detailed probe will ascertain the veracity of Roopa's disclosures.

WORD OF THE DAY

Cannikin

Pronunciation: kan-i-kin

Meaning: A small can or drinking cup; a small wooden bucket.
Origin: Cannikin comes from Middle Dutch cannekijn, Dutch kanneken "small can." The cann-, kann- element comes from Middle Dutch kanne, Dutch kan, and is closely related to German Kanne, Old Norse kanna, Old English canne, and English can, all from Germanic kanna meaning "tankard, container, can." It is possible that this Germanic word is a borrowing from Latin canna "reed, reed pipe, flute, cane," which itself has a very long history. Nouns ending in the diminutive suffix -kin are not common in English, and most of those (example, catkin, gherkin, manikin) are of Dutch origin and date from the mid-16th and mid-17th centuries.

THE ODD WORD

Mabble

To wrap up.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

The Life of Riley

Meaning: An easy and pleasant life.
Origin: The phrase originated in the Irish/American community of the USA, in the early part of the 20th century. The first printed citation of it found is from the Connecticut newspaper The Hartford Courant, December 1911 - in a piece headed 'Bullet Ends Life of Famous Wild Cow': The famous wild cow of Cromwell is no more. After "living the life of Riley" for over a year, successfully evading the pitchforks and the bullets of the farmers, whose fields she ravaged in all four season. The quote marks that the writer added around the phrase are often an indication that the phrase in question isn't familiar to the readership. The phrase was much used in the military, especially in WWI. The first known citation in that context is in a letter from a Sergeant Leonard A. Monzert of the American Expeditionary Forces 'somewhere in France', an extract of which was published in The Brooklyn Daily Eagle on 26th May 1918. In the letter Monzert wrote that he and his pals were 'living the life of Reilly'. Later that year, on 22nd October, The Bridgeport Telegram published a letter from Private Samuel S. Polley, 102 Regiment, stationed in France. "They [German officers] must have led the life of Reilly as we caught them all asleep in beds..." Who Riley was isn't clear. If he had been a known individual then it surely would have been recorded.

Security is mostly a superstition. Life is either a daring adventure or nothing. — Helen Keller
